

HERNSDORF

H

The collection is built upon a return to the art of goldsmithing. In Hensndorf's hands, the humanistic side of jewels is always front and center - underlining why jewelry has historically been, and remains, such an important form of human expression.

Hensndorf earned a degree in fine art at Wesleyan University, then spent decades studying with master goldsmiths - becoming a master and teacher in her own right.

Prior to building her jewelry brand, as a single mother raising two children, Hensndorf also obtained an MA in clinical psychology, had a successful career as a psychotherapist, and became a psychology professor at Loyola Marymount University.

Every element, every link of chain, bezel, and twist of wire that make up the collection is comprised of proprietary alloyed 22 karat gold. All gemstones are carefully curated and ethically sourced. The collection is fully hand wrought in her downtown Los Angeles studio. Hensndorf's aesthetic explores the strength of simple forms from a bold, yet timeless perspective. Each heirloom-quality jewel bears exquisite details and impeccable craftsmanship, evoking a blend of sophistication and subtle irreverence.

"Hensndorf's work transcends time, trends and genders..." - Forbes Magazine
